GENERAL LEE AS A COLLEGE PRESIDENT correspondent of the Richmond Times, criting from Lexington, Virginia, gives an. inside view of the life and daily routine of Gen. Lee, the College President. When the posi Gon was first offered to him, he declined it out after Judge Brockenbrough had visited aim, and expressed the wishes of the faculty, he accepted it in good faith, and has made himself remarkably popular with the students. Although his salary is small, he receives a great many presents from unknown parties, consisting of almost every imaginary article. form books and pictures to clothing and provisions. In society he is not at all unsocial, yet very cautious in conversation, and seldon ex presses his opinions on national topics. He is very much annoyed by artists, requesting him to sit for his picture or bust, and, on one occa sion, he was heard to declare that he had rather stand the fire of half a dozen of the best marksmen in the army of Northern Virginia, tuan be vexed by the continued solicitations of this class of people. He is busy in collecting materials for a history of his campaigns, and the isct that a New York publisher visited him a short time since, is regarded as a proof that the work is now in process of completion. His habits are said to be very industrious. As early as six o'clock in the morning, he may be seen walking into town, to get his letters and papers; the remainder of the day is devoted to his manifold duties, and, in the evening, he rides into the country on his white horse, not enfrequently stopping to converse with the fermers and country gentlemen, with whom he chances to meet, about crops and such matters. Exicking. - As an evidence of the superstifor still extant in the minds of some of the degroes, we relate the following: "A negro woman has a daughter who is sick with inflammao.y rheumatism, but the mother cannot be percuaded that the girl is not "tricked." Some days since the mother visited a fortune-teller, the told her that "tricking" was surely the hiseuse under which her child was suffering .-Thereapon the mother west to her employer as she said, to "ontrick" the sufferer. The 2112 over in vain endeavored to reason her out of the notion of any such thing as "tricking," but she would not be persuaded, and insisted open having the money for the purpose indiented. It was given her, when she returned to home, after consulting the black quack, of every size, and the same sold at reasonable with an amount of herbs, and singular looking | prices. sompounds, sufficient to "ontrick" all the negroes in creation. This occurred s me days since, but we have not heard whether the "tricked" girl has yet had the devils cast out of her. - Lynchburg News.

STATEMENT IN RELATION TO CHOLERA .-Dr. T. S: Bell, an old and eminent physician of 1-ouisville, 2 man of vast acquirements and wide observation and experience, said the other day at a meeting of the Louisville College of also the best of Teas, Java Coffee, &c. my 8-ti Physicians and Surgeons:
